

Archers the Brewers

Archers have been brewing high quality real ale in Swindon for over 25 years and have an envious reputation for producing a wide range of award winning beers. Now under the stewardship of John Williams, the brewery looks set for continued growth and is attracting considerable attention.

However, as any brewer will tell you, having a large selection of quality grain and sugars on site will also attract the wrong type of attention from our rodent friends. In the case of Archers brewery, which was founded in an old locomotive weigh house, they face the added challenge of residing close to the mainline railway which often acts as a rodent super highway.

This year has been a very productive year for the Brown Rat and numbers had grown to such a level that they represented an exceptional challenge to Head Brewer Bala Kumar, so he called in a company that could provide a more appropriate solution to his problem.

Working with Bala and his team, Prokill set about developing a holistic solution to the problem which involved a total audit of the internal and external environment, methodology of work and infrastructure. Prokill were able to identify key areas requiring attention and in many cases organized the reparations and changes required. Only then did Prokill turn its attention to more conventional Pest Control which, when coupled to our holistic approach, has proven to be very effective.

“Prokill has made a big impact” said Bala Kumar. “The attention to detail and partnership style of the Prokill team produced outstanding results”

Local Branch Principal Justin Holloway said “We were excited to be selected by a leading independent brewer to help protect their goods and reputation. As an avid fan of their beer I also can’t deny a little self interest”.
